The Interfaith Solar Campaign and You

Answering the call to stewardship of God's Creation

Is your congregation ready to transform faith into action? Many churches feel called to care for God's creation through renewable energy but lack the expertise and access to funding to fulfill this mission.

Well, the Interfaith Solar Campaign is here for you. Assisting churches to go solar, is what they do.

Without the expertise to navigate the process, many churches give up on taking this very tangible step. We can help you save money, take advantage of the free energy of God's solar design, and make a difference to mitigate climate change. At the same time, you can keep your neighbors safe in times of power outages and natural disasters.

Using technical expertise, campaign staff will help your church go solar, providing a variety of valuable services to you and your congregation. They will:

- Design an appropriate-sized solar array to fit your electricity needs.
- Develop an affordable financial plan.
- Find local solar contractors to get a quality system at an affordable price.
- Provide a digital handbook of information to enhance your understanding.
- Manage construction, system maintenance and performance monitoring.
- Even secure the "direct pay" tax incentives available to your project.

The Interfaith Solar Campaign is part of the United Methodist Creation Justice Movement, a denomination-wide organizing network of local, district, conference, board and agency leaders committed to enhancing Creation Care ministries across the UM Connection. The Campaign partners with Annual Conferences to support their congregations to solarize more efficiently than going alone. With your Conference the Campaign can walk congregations through the solar acquisition process and provide affordable financial options.
